Every Taney baseball win is a win for the city

Williamsport. One of Taney's coaches hopes the group's success shows how important youth sports are.

Mo'ne Davis is a fan favorite. LISA WEINBERGER

The Taney Youth Baseball Organization has catapulted into the national spotlight as they prepare for a big game tonight in Williamsport.

A win would give them a berth into the USA finals, or Little League World Series semifinals, just a stone's throw from the championship game.

But as they prepare, the Mid-Atlantic champs know they are playing for more than just a Little League World Series. They are playing for every young athlete in Philadelphia that's hoping to get the opportunity to show their talents one day, too.

"As a coach and a father, I am a major proponent of youth sports," Taney coach Reggie Cummings told us. "I think it teaches camaraderie, how to pick yourself up if you get knocked town and that you can't do it all on your own."

The kids on Taney hail mostly from Philadelphia public schools — a district embattled with budget shortfalls. Cummings and the rest of the coaching staff hope their success can bring a renewed emphasis on keeping youth sports alive in Philadelphia.

"In terms of Philly Public schools," Cummings said, "I think this is going to be a force for them maybe to go back in, look at some budgets and keep inner city sports alive. It's key to the kids' survival."

Quoted

"One of the things is that Mo'ne has been Mo'ne for a very, very long time. She's always been a dominant pitcher. It's not new for anyone on the team."

Cummings
on pitcher Mo'ne Davis

The Mid-Atlantic team is one of just a handful still standing, and media attention continues to hound them. But the kids know the reason they are there is to play baseball.

"I think they are handling it in stride," Cummings said. "We have a great group of kids, they're extremely humble, they understand what it means to play in the Little League World Series. We have a tagline: 'Tough and gritty those kids from the city.' It's a little overwhelming but they're handling it."

Dilworth reboot gets booze, Garces

Dilworth Plaza's facelift is just about ready for its debut.

On Sept. 4, the Center City District will throw a three-day festival for the unveiling of the renovations to the commuter park, officials said Tuesday.

Paul Levy, president and CEO of the Center City District, also announced for the first time that the new park's cafe will serve alcohol and will feature cuisine from Jose Garces and his Cuban-inspired Rosa Blanca restaurant.

And the plaza, on the west side of City Hall, will be renamed Dilworth Park in honor of its new surroundings, but the name has yet to officially be approved by City Council.

"We think the word 'park' speaks to a much more green, sustainable site," Levy said. "'Plaza' to us speaks to the old, hard surfaces."

Garces — an Iron Chef who owns and operates five restaurants in the city including Mexican-themed Amada in Old City and Distrito in University City — said when considering what foods to serve, he looked to the dynamic of the park. "Lots of public space, like hanging out, so I looked at handheld items and things that will be easily transported.

"And with the liquor component, we thought it would be great to have something to have with a mojito in the spring," he said. TOMMY ROWAN

Visit Metro.us to learn more about Dilworth's newest features.

New cafe

The new cafe, at the northern end of the park, will seat about 30 inside and about 25 on the square.

- It will be open from 7 a.m. to about 8 p.m. during the week and longer on weekends. Breakfast will feature freshly roasted coffee and pastries and Rosa Blanca's staple dishes for lunch and dinner. It will serve alcohol after 5 p.m.

SEPTA bus engine catches fire, totaled

A SEPTA bus caught fire Tuesday while turning around at Penn's Landing, transit officials said.

There were no passengers on the Route 33 bus, according to SEPTA Spokesman Andrew Busch; however, the bus driver was admitted to Hahnemann University Hospital for observation.

"We don't know the exact cause of the fire, but it was in the engine compartment," Busch said.

The bus was heading for a turnaround between runs and caught fire just before noon. Busch said flames and thick smoke could be seen wafting from the bus. Busch said the 15-year-old vehicle was "most likely" totaled.

"We would work to get parts, but you're not going to see that out on the roads anytime soon." Busch

Tacony. Late-night firefight leaves suspect dead, shot cop recovering

An early morning encounter Tuesday left a gun-toting ex-con dead by police bullets and an officer shot with a near-fatal graze wound to the head.

Officer Stephen Korpalski, a 14-year veteran of the force, was shot while responding with his partner to reports of a "man with a gun" on the 6400 block of Ditman Street in Tacony at 12:44 a.m. Tuesday, police said.

Korpalski and his partner, in full uniform and driving a police wagon, tried to stop a suspect near the corner of Magee Street and Torresdale Avenue in the 15th police district.

As they tried to stop the suspect, David Ellis, of the 2900 block of South Bouvier Street in South Philadelphia, he reportedly shot a .32 caliber handgun six times at the officers, one bullet grazing the left side of Korpalski's head.

Officer Stephen Korpalski, left, and his partners shot at David Ellis, who had opened fire on them. / PPD

Korpalski, his partner and other arriving officers returned fire, striking Ellis multiple times and mortally wounding him.

Ellis was transported to Aria-Torresdale Hospital in Frankford where he was pronounced dead at 1:35 a.m.

Korpalski was brought to Albert Einstein Medical Center in stable condition. He was released from the hospital on Tuesday and was in recovering at home with his wife and 3-week-old daughter.

Ellis has a history of illegal activity and police involvement dating back to 2000.

Reports say he had eight previous arrests. He was reportedly released from parole in September 2013, after serving six years of a 10-year sentence for drug and gun violations.

No other suspects are wanted by police in connection with the shooting. SAM NEWHOUSE

Funeral planned for Missouri teen shot by police

Protests. Dozens more were arrested, many of whom police said were not from the area.

Cops arrest a protester on Monday. / GETTY IMAGES

Funeral services are planned on Monday for an unarmed black teenager whose fatal shooting by a white policeman in Missouri has ignited more than a week of racially charged clashes in Ferguson.

As lawyers for the family of Michael Brown, 18, announced plans on Tuesday for his funeral, lawmakers called for calm and a change in police tactics that have so far failed to soothe angry demonstrators.

Police said they came under gunfire again overnight and made dozens of arrests despite the deployment of Missouri National Guard troops and the lifting of a curfew.

There were at least 57 arrests on Monday night and into Tuesday, most on a charge of failure to disperse, according to the St. Louis County Justice Services Center. It said 15 of those arrested were from outside Missouri.

"The people who are rioting and looting are not the people who live in this area. They come down here and they wait for the action to start," said Arlando Travis, 38, owner of a local business. REUTERS

Two youths accused of plotting school shooting spree

Police in the Los Angeles suburb of South Pasadena said they have thwarted a mass shooting plot with the arrest of two teenagers who were conspiring to kill several staffers and as many fellow students as possible at their high school.

Detectives were tipped off to the plot by South Pasadena High School administrators and arrested the two students after serving search warrants at each of their homes, the South Pasadena Police Department said in a statement.

The students discussed via Internet messages plans to make explosives and researched what type of guns to use. REUTERS

Google considering YouTube and Gmail for children: Report

Social media. Most Internet companies do not offer services to children under the age of 13.

Google is reportedly considering younger users. / GETTY IMAGES

Google Inc. is considering allowing online accounts for children under the age of 13, giving their parents control over how the service is used, according to several media reports.

Google has been working on a version of YouTube, its video-sharing site, for youngsters and is considering other child-friendly accounts such as its Gmail system, the Financial Times reported, citing a person familiar with the matter.

Google's effort is partly driven by the fact that some parents are already trying to create accounts for their children, and the company wants to make the process easier and compliant with the rules, the Wall Street Journal reported, citing a person familiar with the effort.

Google's move was first reported by technology news website The Information.

A company spokesman for Google, Peter Barron, declined to comment on what he called "rumors and speculation." REUTERS

Outbreak. Liberia fights Ebola in capital as West Africa death toll rises

Liberia battled on Tuesday to halt the spread of the Ebola disease in its crowded, rundown ocean-side capital, Monrovia, recording the most new deaths as fatalities from the world's worst outbreak of the deadly virus rose above 1,200.

The epidemic of the hemorrhagic disease, which can kill up to 90 percent of those it infects, is ravaging the three small West African states of Liberia, Sierra Leone and Guinea, and also has a toehold in Nigeria, Africa's biggest economy.

As the Geneva-based World Health Organization (WHO) rushed to ramp up the global response to the outbreak, including emergency food deliveries to quarantined zones, it announced that deaths from it had risen to 1,299 as of Aug. 16, out of 2,240 cases. On a more hopeful note, WHO expressed "cautious optimism" that the spread of the Ebola outbreak in Nigeria, Africa's most populous nation where four deaths out of 12 confirmed cases have been recorded since July, could be stopped.

It also described the situation in Guinea, where the virus made its first appearance in West Africa in December, as currently "less alarming" than in Liberia and Sierra Leone.

Hart hearts fiancee

Kevin Hart announced via Twitter that he asked girlfriend Eniko Parrish to marry him. "She said YEEEEESSSSS," he posted, along with the hashtag #IF—ingLoveHer (though he used three letters instead of a long line between the F and the ing) and a pic of the happy couple along with an impressive rock on her finger. The couple has been dating for five years, though Hart's ex-wife, Torrei Hart, previously told Entertainment Tonight that Parrish was the reason for their divorce — a claim Hart refuted: "I guess giving a woman over [$20,000] a month and still being there for her and being an incredible father isn't enough."

GETTY IMAGES

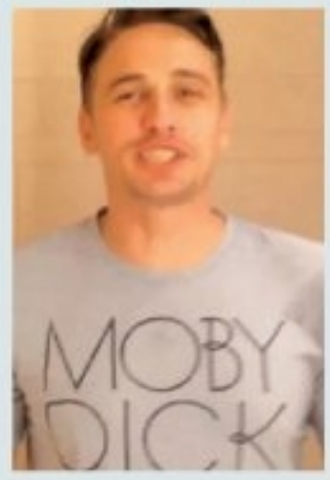
Bringing back the fanny pack?

This is of great cultural significance, so pay attention: Matthew McConaughey has officially vouched for the fanny pack. The "Dallas Buyers Club" actor wore one to a Red Sox/Astros game, and even defended the accessory to CSN Houston's Julia Morales. "I'm not afraid of the fanny pack," McConaughey says. "You've got to kind of put it on the side to make it look a little not as nerdy, but still, practicality wins out. I got so much gear in here that I don't want in my pockets."

Love is in the air, literally

If there's one thing famous people are good at, it's setting unrealistic expectations. To wit: anyone having an anniversary, since Portia de Rossi set the bar way too high for her sixth anniversary with wife Ellen DeGeneres. The talk show host posted a photo of the two smiling underneath the skywriting de Rossi had ordered for the day, with clouds spelling out "six." How is a nice dinner supposed to look after skywriting has been offered up as an option?

Talking points



Franco keeps #ALSicebucket challenge interesting

Hollywood's reigning enfant terrible James Franco got doused in a shower and passed the ALS Ice Bucket Challenge on to Zach Braff, Keegan Allen and Joey King by way of a piece of paper shielding his naked crotch. Though, to be fair, he wasn't completely naked. Never one to pass up a good literary reference or a bad pun, Franco wore a "Moby Dick" shirt.

Interview. Mira Sorvino pursues eternal life on her new BBC America show, 'Intruders'

Just who do you think the people around you are, anyway? That's a question that BBC America's new show "Intruders" answers in a fairly unnerving way: The show concerns a secret society that achieves immortality by taking over the bodies of other people.

Star Mira Sorvino calls it "really chilling, and in some way really believable." She plays Amy Whelan, a woman who disappears for a few days, then returns acting totally differently. As Sorvino says, everyone has seen "when a darker side of someone comes out and you feel like you never knew that person at all, like that was a different face they were showing you."

That's the problem facing Amy's poor husband, Jack, an ex-cop who tries to figure out what's going on with his wife. "The role has this real range to it, so I get to play this sort of soft, vulnerable side and then this much stronger, kind of Machiavellian, amoral but passionate person," Sorvino says.

"INTRUDERS" PREMIERES SATURDAY AT 10 P.M.

GETTY IMAGES

The show's focus on immortality is a pretty natural one, Sorvino thinks, because a fear of death is pretty universal. "No one wants to die, and everyone would love it if there was an answer that didn't involve permanent midnight," she says.

"Intruders" will also examine some tough questions a person might face over an infinite life, such as what family means after all that time. "All those things that a human cares about, if you could control living on and on ... what things would have to be foregone?" Sorvino ponders. "Or what things would you fight to keep?"

Mystery

Getting answers

"Intruders" is at heart a mystery show, so we tried to get Sorvino to share some details. But she has mastered the art of tantalizing caginess. What can be teased about the rest of the season? "There's all kinds of shocking stuff. Like things that don't usually happen on TV," she promises. "I can't say what those things are, but there's a lot to keep you coming back week after week."

One character seems to have multiple people controlling her body. Will that happen to anyone else? "I can't answer that, but I'm not going to say no," Sorvino says. Sounds like we might be on the right track. LISA WEIDENFELD

The Weekly Yelp. Celebrate Mac and Cheese Day

National Mac and Cheese Day is on Monday, but honestly, we don't really need an excuse to celebrate this momentous dish any day of the year. Perhaps no one can top your Gram Gram's secret recipe, but these Philadelphia eateries come pretty darn close. Grab a fork and see for yourself!

No, that's not a pie, that's mac and cheese from Percy Street Barbecue! / JENNIFER L.

Wedge + Fig

160 N 3rd St. Old City
Seriously, bacon! Delicious bacon lattice over a baked mac and cheese dish with bits of bacon inside. Seriously, loved this place. The entire party ordered the same thing. NICO L.

Varga Bar

941 Spruce St., Washington Square West
We opted for fried pickles and mac and cheese, which were both very heavy and filling, and worth it! The mac and cheese is made with black truffle and topped with panko bread crumbs, so you know it's going to be indulgent. VICTORIA L.

The Abbaye

637 N. 3rd St., Northern Liberties
Consistently good food at decent prices with veggie options. Extra bonus points for the city's best mac and cheese for only five bucks. SOPHIA L.

Percy Street Barbecue

900 South St., South Street Headhouse District
Wow! This was a great side, lightly crusted, piping hot out of the oven. This mac and cheese, even if you are lactose intolerant, you still need to try. ... Creamy, flavorful and simply just puts a smile on your face. A must order. NANDO F.

IFOOD GLORIOUS IFOOD: BETTER MEALS ONLINE

First there was delivery pizza and the world swooned. Next came on-demand grocery services like FreshDirect and the world, uh, swooned again. Then came Grubhub, Seamless and the rest of the online delivery behemoths. What's next for lazy, hungry people? It's services that plan out meals for you and then send you exact ingredient amounts. This idea is blowing up in a major way with three companies already on the scene. Here's an overview:

Blue Apron sends you surprise meals based on certain criteria. / BLUE APRON

Blue Apron

Blueapron.com
This is the best of the bunch, if only because they've been around the longest, working out kinks along the way. It's a mystery box, of sorts. You click on how many meals you want delivered and any dietary restrictions you might have and let the magical robot grandma do the rest. They send partitioned ingredients your way, so if the recipe calls for a teaspoon of salt, they'll send an exact teaspoon of salt. The recipes, which you have no control over, are extremely easy to follow, even for anxiety-prone Grubhub addicts (not naming any names).

Popcart

GetPopcart.com/fresh-direct
Now this is interesting: Brought to you by Foodily and FreshDirect, Popcart is a Web browser extension that automatically orders the ingredients for any recipe that suits your fancy. Of course, you have to live in a city that FreshDirect furnishes, so Nebraskans are out of luck (again).

DIY (sort of)

Forage

Forage.co
This is a new kid on the block, following the Blue Apron blueprint, with one tweak: They do the cutting and chopping for you. If a recipe calls for a half cup of onions, Forage will chop it for you and seal it away in an airtight container. So all you do is turn the oven on and stir things.

Forage gives you meals that are ready to cook. FORAGE

The Ebola epidemic has spread to four West African countries, with Liberia now having the most deaths. / GETTY IMAGES

Ebola virus not a threat to US

Containing the contagion. There's optimism about stopping the virus.

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

Though the worst outbreak of Ebola since its detection in the 1970s is not yet contained, there's reason to be hopeful.

There is no confirmed cure for the deadly disease, but Dr. Kent Brantly, one of two medical missionaries who underwent an experimental treatment this month after becoming infected, released a statement last week saying that he is "recovering in every way." The World Health Organization has endorsed the use of experimental drugs, though supplies are limited.

The group also issued a statement to quell growing concerns about the potential for Ebola to spread via air travel.

Dr. Robert Amler, dean of the Institute of Public Health at New York Medical College and a former chief medical officer for the Centers for Disease Control, called the chances of Ebola spreading aboard planes small. "The disease is not highly contagious among people who have casual contact," he said.

Ebola can't be transmitted through the air like the flu, nor is it a food- or water-borne illness. It can spread only through "very, very direct contact" with the blood and bodily fluids of an infected person.

"If someone is not sick, they're not contagious; and if they are sick, they're going to be too sick to travel," he said. "Even if they wanted to travel, the airlines are not going to board someone who is obviously very sick."

Ebola cases have been reported in Guinea, Liberia, Sierra Leone and, most recently, Nigeria, with 2,240 confirmed diagnoses and 1,229 deaths as of Tuesday.

There are two factors that have made this outbreak worse than previous incidents, according to Amler: The strain of the virus is more lethal, and the disease cropped up in a densely populated area as opposed to a rural village.

Containment

Help on the way

The CDC has dispatched a team of experts to help local health authorities in Africa, which makes Amler optimistic.

"That's a very positive development, because the science of disease control, just like the laws of physics, doesn't change much from one continent to another. We can expect that the disease control measures, once put in place, will be effective."

How to play
Fill in the grid so that every row, every column and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1-9. There is no math involved. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic.

Letters

Don't make noise, make change

Why hasn't the situation evolved? Because our response hasn't. Intellects like Dr. Charles Ogletree called for "a lot of noise," and organizers handed out markers and signs. This country does not need another howling, poster board protest. And Ferguson, Missouri, does not need our sympathy. They need our action. This frustrating charade, like our nation's deep-seated racial tensions, has boiled on for far too long. The status quo is unacceptable. In Michael Brown's honor, coalesce into an unflinching activist front that demands the institutionalization of real police accountability.
ADAM FRIEDMAN, VIA EMAIL

Nobody's right

If everybody's wrong, as Buffalo Springfield put it so succinctly. The cop(s) involved most certainly should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. But here's the problem: I do not see how rioting and looting can generate any sympathy for the cause, and it surely will not bring any justice for the kid who was killed. Sadly, too many will look upon it as an excuse for certain kinds of people to commit mayhem, and their victims are, ironically, their own neighbors.
C. J. EVANS, VIA EMAIL

Taney Little League keeps eye on prize

Little League World Series. Taney can play itself into the championship game with two more wins.

Talk about growing up fast. The kids vying for a Little League World Series as part of the Mid-Atlantic champions were — not more than two months ago — playing on inner-city fields in Philadelphia as part of the Taney Youth Baseball Organization. Look at them now.

With a win Wednesday against the West (Nevada) the 12- and 13-year-olds will advance to the USA final Saturday (the LLWS semifinal). A win there means they get the chance to face an international team for the title Sunday.

"They are growing up kind of fast but they have been able to handle it extremely well," Taney coach Reggie Cummings told Metro. "It says a lot about all the parents and coaches and kids themselves, all that we've been able to do as a Taney family. They have been stepping up. "

Wednesday's game against Nevada (7:30 p.m. on ESPN) could be the toughest draw yet for the pride of Philadelphia, as the West is always a top contender to make the Little League final.

"The teams that come out of the West … are very, very tough and they're really good," Cummings said. "I anticipate it will be a tough game. I know their starting lineup can hit from top to bottom."

Taney has done its homework, however, and has scouted Nevada tirelessly to make sure the coaching staff can put the players in a position to keep winning.

"We do as much as we possibly can, like our competitors do, to learn the little things that give us the competitive edge," Cummings said.

Sure, it's the biggest stage on which any youth baseball team from Philadelphia has ever played. But don't bother telling the kids that. They have a baseball game to play.

"They love to play the game," the coach said.

"It's a tremendous honor to be here and they are showing the younger kids back in Philly that you don't have to be from the suburbs … if you love the game and work hard you can come from an urban environment and play in the Little League World Series."

Top 5 Sixers games to watch

NBA. Here's a handful of can't-miss games on the 76ers 2013-14 schedule.

The 2014-15 Philadelphia 76ers' schedule was released last week.

While the Sixers remain light years from a championship-caliber team, it's always exciting to see the new schedule and identify some intriguing matchups. Picking five to highlight out of 82 is not an easy task.

NOEL'S OFFICIAL NBA DEBUT WILL TAKE PLACE IN INDIANA.
ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

1 Oct. 29 at Indiana

The season opener is always fascinating because that's when the games count for real.

The Pacers are banged up, especially with the loss of All-Star forward Paul George to a gruesome leg injury in a U.S. national team scrimmage.

Without George, Lance Stephenson, who signed with Charlotte, and former Sixer Evan Turner, this matchup doesn't quite have the same buzz as it typically would.

Any season opener is special and this will likely be the first look at Nerlens Noel. That in itself is worth everything to Sixers fans.

2 Nov. 1 vs. Miami

Just like last season, the Sixers will open their home schedule against Miami. Since the Heat lost LeBron James in free agency to the Cleveland Cavaliers, this game isn't quite as enticing.

But with Dwyane Wade, Chris Bosh and Luol Deng, the Heat remain a potent team in the East.

Even though the Sixers are likely to wind up in the lottery once again, the home opener will give the fans a glimpse into the future.

WADE WILL TRY AND PICK UP THE SLACK FOR THE DEPARTED LEBRON JAMES.

3 Dec. 1 vs. San Antonio

The NBA champion Spurs visit the Wells Fargo Center for the lone time on this date.

The stellar trio of Tim Duncan, Tony Parker and Manu Ginobili don't seem to be slowing down at all.

There's such a strong supporting cast that another championship is well within reach for head coach Gregg Popovich.

They may not have the flash of other players such as LeBron James, but anytime the champions come to town, it's a must-see.

4 Jan. 5 vs. Cleveland

King James will return to Philadelphia with the Cavaliers.

It's been a wild offseason and the pieces fell into place around the league once James decided to head back to Cleveland where his career started. It's a new-look team but also a dynamic one which will surely be a contender in the East. James will be motivated to prove that he made the right decision in leaving Miami, and he always seems to elevate his game in Philadelphia.

JAMES WILL EMBARK ON A NEW STAGE IN HIS NBA CAREER.

5 March 30 vs. LA Lakers

There are other games with major storylines, but the Lakers' annual visit to Philadelphia is going to be great, mostly because Kobe Bryant is on the mend from another major injury.

Bryant, a former star at nearby Lower Merion High School, revels in playing against the Sixers.

Since Bryant is nearing the end of a brilliant career, it's hard to say how many more times he'll be healthy to play here.

Look for Kobe to have a big night in the face of a cavalcade of boos from the Sixers' faithful.

Eagles stay loose, downplay drama

NFL. Despite the headlines, injury scares and rumors, the Eagles continue to relax as they get ready for the season.

It seems like the most noticeable themes of this summer's Eagles training camp are staying loose and downplaying anything which seems troubling in the public eye.

It started with DeSean Jackson. How can you possibly replace the production of the 2014 Pro Bowl receiver? In stepped Jeremy Maclin and Jordan Matthews. Two fights at training camp in two straight practices? It happens. Emotions run high sometimes, who move on and forget it happened.

The latest Eagle at the center of attention? Running back LeSean McCoy, who missed practice Sunday because of a toe injury on his left foot. Chip Kelly took to the podium Tuesday to downplay his star running back's injury.

"I don't think he'll ever play again," joked Kelly. "He's fine. He practiced full on [Monday]. He's fine. It's not as big an issue as I think anyone has made it out to be."

McCoy, who rushed for 1,607 yards and nine touchdowns last season, is arguably the Eagles most important player on offense. He's aiming for 2,000 yards on the ground this season, a feat that's only been done seven times in NFL history. He knows what's at stake.

"If it hurts too much, I'll shut it down," McCoy said. "I warmed up and it felt good. I can feel it still, but I pushed through it."

Kelly has the Eagles drama-free, something that former coach Andy Reid had so much trouble with during his 14-year tenure with the team. It's his locker room and the team is ready and willing to listen.

Suburban Metro

Dear readers: Metro Philadelphia is happy to introduce our new zoned section especially for our suburban loyalists. Stories, event listings and ads for local businesses will be featured every Thursday in this section. Have any questions, comments or advertising requests? You can reach out to jennifer.clark@metro.us.

Historic hot spots

Grange Estate, Haverford

Plenty of places claim "George Washington slept here," but Grange Estate has a journal entry to prove the first president dined in Haverford. Washington and the Marquis de Lafayette met at Grange Estate to talk about Revolutionary War tactics, and Washington was a frequent dinner guest.

Construction on the historic estate started with the first settlers of Haverford. Go on a (very inexpensive) tour to learn more about the estate and how its inhabitants helped shaped the country.

Tours run every Saturday and Sunday, 1-4 p.m. through Oct. 26. Cost is $4/adults and $1/children. Don't miss the gift shop with "handmade in America" items. 610-446-4958, www.thegrangeestate.org

Spotlight

Back to School Bash at Sesame Place

Saturday and Sunday, 5 p.m.; $17-$27; Sesame Place, 100 Sesame Rd., Langhorn; 1-866-464-3566; www.sesameplace.com
Before your kids hit the books, hit up Sesame Place for a dinner with their favorite characters. Celebrate the new school year with a barbecue, singing and dancing and themed desserts. Park admission is required in addition to the dining reservation.

Spotlight

America's Road: The Journey of Route 66

Through Sunday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; $12; Mercer Museum, 84 South Pine St., Doylestown; 215-345-0210; www.mercermuseum.org
Take a ride along America's most iconic highway from its opening in 1926 until present day. Artifacts, photos, props and interactive displays — including a drive-in theater and a period radio show — will have you believing you're cruising along Route 66 listening to Nat King Cole. Museum opens at noon Sunday; discounts for seniors and kids.

Around town

Malvern Stroll

Thursday, 4-8 p.m.; along King Street, Malvern; www.facebook.com/malvernstroll
Shop your favorite Malvern businesses and find special promotions and extended hours during Third Thursday's Malvern Stroll. King Street businesses will stay open until 8 p.m. for plenty of steals and deals.

Jazz Cocktail Hour

Thursday, 6 p.m.; $15; Knights of Columbus, 110 West Market St., West Chester; www.uptownwestchester.org/tickets.html
Philadelphia bluegrass/rock/folk band Mason Porter will play West Chester in an evening of music. With its arsenal of well-know hits and original songs, Mason Porter is one of the Philadelphia region's favorite local bands. Cocktail hour starts at 6 p.m., with the concert at 6:30 p.m.

Bryn Mawr Group Fun Run

Thursday, 6 p.m.; Bryn Mawr Running Co., 13 E. State St., Media; 610-627-0600; www.brynmawrrunningco.com
Get your exercise and drinking in all in one night. Meet up with fellow runners for a group fun run. Choose between either the 2.5-mile or 4.3-mile course. After the run, everyone gets together for pizza or a drink at a local watering hole.

The Survival: Gridlocked!

Thursday, 6:30 p.m.; Chester County Library, 450 Exton Square Pkwy., Exton; 610-280-2600; www.ccls.org
Are you ready for a disaster? Not a zombie apocalypse, but an honest-to-goodness help-isn't-coming disaster? Learn how to survive if you're forced to shelter in your home and what you can use around the house to ensure your survival.

Country Fest

Friday, 5:30-8:30 p.m.; $9/adult, $7/child; Elmwood Park Zoo, 1661 Harding Blvd., Norristown; 610-277-3825 x221; www.elmwoodparkzoo.org
Get out your boots and cowboy hat for a country fest among the animals at Elmwood Park Zoo. Philly's country station, 92.5 FM, will broadcast live from the zoo

'The Crucible'

Opening Thursday, 8 p.m.; Playcrafters of Skippack, 2011 Store Rd., Skippack; 610-584-4005; www.playcrafters.org
Arthur Miller's famous play about the irreversible evil that happens when lies flourish comes to the stage in Skippack. It's 1692 and the pious citizens of Salem, Massachusetts, are convinced witches are in their presence. Accusations from a petty teenager send shock waves through the community. It also runs on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 29-31 and Sept. 4-6.

Travel back in time this weekend

There are a few weekends left to soak up summer, and it's a great time to experience the rich history in the Delaware Valley. Instead of fighting throngs of tourists at Independence Mall, expand your horizons at some of the many historic sites just outside of Philadelphia. Check out these historical destinations, all easily accessible from the Philly suburbs and offering weekend tours. LAUREN BURGOON

Parry Mansion, New Hope

215-862-5652, www.newhopehs.org
Drive a little further out of Philly to New Hope for a tour of Parry Mansion. It was the home of New Hope's founder, Benjamin Parry, and its 11 rooms reflect the changing times of the two centuries the Parry family owned the mansion.

Don't forget to keep your eyes peeled for the ghosts of Parry Mansion's past. It's reportedly home to several spirits.

Tours of Parry Mansion and its grounds run Saturday and Sunday, 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. through November. Admission is free.

Barns-Brinton House and John Chads' House, Chadds Ford

610-388-7376, www.chaddsfordhistory.org
The Barns-Brinton House is one of the original Philly suburb watering holes. Built as a tavern, the house celebrates its 300th anniversary this year. William Barns opened it figuring travelers needed a tavern on "ye Great Road to Nottingham."

Just down the road sits John Chads' House, where the namesake of Chadds Ford made his home. You never know whom you'll run into at tours of the houses — perhaps Gen. George Washington, preparing for the Battle of Brandywine, or a woman demonstrating baking techniques of Colonial America. This Saturday, from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., there's a special star-spangled craft-making project for children 3 and older.

Doylestown Cemetery, Doylestown

215-348-3911, www.doylestowncemetery.com
Everyone you learn about on historic tours is dead anyway; why not see their final resting places? Doylestown Cemetery is a rolling 33 acres that holds stories of the past.

Costumed guides bring those stories to the present during a pleasant walk through the cemetery. Themed walking tours highlight Civil War history, tombstone interpretation, politics and local VIPs.

Tours take place every Saturday at 10 a.m. and 9 p.m., with rotating themes. Check the website for a full schedule. A $5 donation is suggested.
